The Military Seeds: Life's Lessons Learned in the United States Military Frank Barry

Patrick Brennan, the main character in the first book of the Seeds Quartet, The Seminary Seeds, Life's Lessons Learned in the Seminary, is again on the road to find out. He has just separated from the U.S. Air Force and has taken an overseas out and living for a month on the Island of Mykonos, Greece. As in the first book, he finds a mentor, someone he can talk to about his plans for the future. He is Peter Papakostas, a goat herder. But as Patrick discovers, Peter is more than that. Peter listens and questions Patrick on this journey of discovery to an awareness that the military has prepared him well for that next step in life. Patrick again comes to the realization that all experiences both positive and negative can be useful and that seeds planted and nurtured can bloom into a meaningful life.
