For many high school graduates, college is a way to get ahead, but going to college is not the only way for young adults to succeed. Many people choose to enter the workforce after high school to start earning money and gaining experience right away. These motivated young workers can have rewarding jobs without ever having to earn a 4-year college degree. If you're interested in music, theater, or art, and don't know that you want to—or can—go to college, a career in the arts might be right for you. Young people need only a high school diploma or equivalent to start work in a career in the arts, and they can eventually earn more than $50,000 a year. In The Arts: Dance, Music, Theater and Fine Art, you'll learn how to start a career in the arts and what you need to succeed in the field. Find out about the prospects for these careers in the future, how much workers can make each year, and whether your path to success includes a career in music, theater, dance, or fine art.
